Art Unit: 3726

1. The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: while figure 9 does provide disclosure for the "end surface" which has been added to claim 1, this subject matter is not explicitly discussed in the specification. The newly added limitations directed to the "end surface" in amended claim 1 needs to be added to the appropriate section of the specification.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 5 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chau-Ngoc et al (6382202) in view of German 3446296. Chau-Ngoc et al discloses drill portion 1, blade 3, and the rearward cylindrical mounting portion. Slots are provided in order to form radial projections 8 in order to transmit torque from the chuck to the tool (see column 3, lines 9-15). The diameter of this engaging member 8 formed by the slots/projections is less than the diameter of the flange 7. It is noted that the forward facing portion of flange 7 is slanted, not perpendicular to the tool axis. Figure 2 of German '296 shows a similar cutter, and the forward face of flange 20 is perpendicular to the axis of the tool in order to be held by sleeve 17 of the chuck. In view of this teaching of German '296, it is considered to have been obvious to have made the forward surface of flange 7 of Chau-Ngoc et al perpendicular to the tool axis in order to seat appropriately with a chuck having such a required configuration.

4. Claims 1, 4, and 7 are allowed.
